AROUND OUR HOUSE

OLD CLOTHES TO MEND
Mending can be a restful job after a hard day's work. If it isn't, perhaps the mending equipment is not conveniently arranged.
One way to keep sewing materials together even without a separate sewing room is to make a set of shelves for the room you like to sew in. Clothing specialists at the New York State College of Home Economics suggest old boards or fruit crates or heavy cardboard boxes be used to make the shelves; paint them to harmonize with the wood-work or walls. Small shelves made with carrying handles attached may be stored in a closet and brought into the living room when needed. Thus, they may be placed near the radio in the evening, and the mending done to the tune of a favorite program.
Another way to keep the sewing equipment together is in a chest. Old-fashioned blanket chests will do if you do not want to make a new one, although new ones may be easily built.
The chest may be large enough to store a portable sewing machine, or a small pressing board or iron. Small trays in the top may be fitted to hold darning materials and sewing equipment. These too, can be removed and carried to an easy chair by a window for the work.
The designing and storing of mending equipment is a job for each homemaker to figure out for herself, but the time used in planning is well spent because when the unit is complete, all articles are at hand and no time is lost in collecting them for each mending.
"How tall was that famous old Indian hunter?"
"Oh, I imagine he was about six feet in his stalking feet."
In the deep South a negro woman who applied for relief was asked the ages of her four children to which she promptly replied: "I has a lap young 'un, a crawler, a porcher and a yard-runner."
Manager: "In the play we are preparing to give, I am casting you for a very prominent part."
Candidate: "Shall I have the leading role?"
Manager: "Not quite; but almost. You are shot just before the first act begins. We have arranged a funeral song for three voices, as the opening, and as we have only two singers you will have to help them out."
Teacher: "Give me an example of minority rule."
Jefferson: "When there's a new baby in the house."

Louisa's Letter

Dear Louisa:
I am a woman of 30 and I am going with a widower of 45. He has three children and I like them very much. But I wonder how it will be when I marry their father. I am afraid they will not obey me and they would cause contention. Would you advise me to marry him under the circumstances?
"Unmarried"—Del.
Answer:
If you are in love with the man and he is a sensible fellow, I see no reason why you shouldn't marry him just because he has three children. I'll admit that you'll have a much harder job to get along with a ready-made family than if you had just one person to live with, but probably the man is worth it.
The best idea, if the children are of 'teen age, is to leave most of the management of them to the father—such as when they go out at night and how late they stay, and the amount of money they spend. This will eliminate discord.
Very often children of that age welcome a woman into the house if they have been having to manage themselves. They are glad for someone to take charge and put things to rights. Your attitude towards them from the first will decide in great part whether or not they are glad you have come into the family.
But a stepmother, to be a success, must have lots of patience and love in her heart for her husband's children.
LOUISA.

such as clubs and parties. Then I get so tired that I can hardly go. I am afraid that if I refuse invitations now that I won't get any after the baby gets old enough for me to want to go again. What do you think about this problem?
"Young Mother"—Iowa
Answer:
I certainly don't think that it will pay you to ruin your health just to keep up with society. Why don't you simply tell your friends that while the baby is small, you are giving up parties that come on certain days of the week, but that when he gets larger you will start back again. A small child needs lots of attention and it pays big dividends in satisfaction later on to give it to him then rather than to suffer regret in after years.
However, I think even a busy young mother needs a change from the same routine day after day, and if I were you, I would try to arrange my work so that I could get off to a party or club about once a week. In that way you will come in contact with other people and ideas and not get in such a rut. You will have something else to talk about besides the baby and the price of meat.
But don't keep on going every day just to keep up with the Joneses. That's a big mistake.
LOUISA.

MODERN OUR JOB PRINTING IS RIGHT IN THE GROOVE

Dear Louisa:
I have a baby and I have most of the housework to do by myself. I can get thru very well unless I take on too many outside activities.

THE HI HERALD

ible projects seemed to be a bake sale, a card party, and a sleighride. The latter would be merely for social purposes. Other projects were discussed, but not activities for immediate fulfillment.

The class discussed plans for the bake sale and card party at a Junior meeting held Friday.
Mr. Bretsch tendered several suggestions for money-making activities in line with the committee's discussion.

Scientific Jam Session

Last week Wednesday if one had listened carefully he could have heard two ingenious boys from the physics class in full swing with a bass viol, trumpet and French horn. These instruments were borrowed from the music department to demonstrate to the members of the class the laws of vibrating strings and the principles of resonance. Under the very able leadership of Maestro Maloy, Vic Oakes and Art Temple, gave the class a very interesting demonstration.

ACS Musicians Go Skating

After much discussion and debating, members of the band and chorus of ACS decided upon Friday evening, January 20 as the date for their long awaited skating party. The bus, filled to capacity, left the school about 7:15 o'clock and soon arrived at its destination—Sloane's Funcrest in Wellsville. Approximately 50 pupils went, accompanied by Mr. Maloy, Miss Daly and Miss Hanneman.

Grade News

We wonder which grade our favorite epidemic of mumps will enter next. In Miss Clark's room 11 pupils are ill with mumps. Kenneth Kerns and Gladys Nobles have left the kindergarten to enter the Whitehall and Angelica schools, respectively.
Doris and Arthur Tyler are two new pupils in Miss Seguin's room. These pupils were formerly of Scio. The favorite drawings on the grade bulletin boards are Valentines and portraits of Lincoln.
In Miss Butler's room the pupils are drawing names for Valentines and planning a Valentine party with games and refreshments.
Francis Greene, a pupil in Miss Perkins' room, has broken his wrist.

Guess Who?

A cheery smile, a twinkling eye is directed toward each passer by. Those who know him understand why his presence is so much in demand.
He used to study catechism. But now the object of his romanticism is an eighth grade girl with dark brown eyes.
He thinks she's swell, she thinks him wise.
His ultimate aim? To be a star (in infancy)
On baseball, sports or the pharmacy.
This Senior boy whom you all must know.
At jerkin' sodas is not slow!
Who is he?—Answer next week.

Teacher's Interview

Presenting . . . MISS HANNEMAN
Full name: Marian Elaine Hanneman.
High school attended: South Park High School, Buffalo.
College attended: Syracuse University.
Favorite: Book: "Keys of the Kingdom." Movie: "How Green Was My Valley."
Actor: Gary Cooper.
Actress: Bette Davis.
Sport: Horseback riding.
Food: Steak and ice cream.
Miss Hanneman, the music teacher, is popular with the students and faculty members both as a person and in her capacity as director of the junior band and chorus, and Senior band and chorus. We, the members of A.C.S., wish her continued success.

Social Hour Held

The weekly Social Hour was held Wednesday evening in the high school auditorium. Dancing was enjoyed from 7 o'clock to 8:30 only, because of the Boy Scout meeting, which was scheduled to be held in the gymnasium at 8:30. The music of Stanley Ruger's up-to-date records was greatly appreciated by all those present.
