"Bud" Dolan Writes From Parris Island

Parris Island, S. C. March 29, 1942.

Dear Mom, Dad and Kids:

I haven't much time to write as it's nearly time for lights out, so I'll hurry and write as much as I can.

We fired for record and Clyde and I both qualified as marksmen. I didn't have a very good day and didn't make sharpshooter, but I'm quite well satisfied to be a marksman. The day after we shot for record we came back to the main station from the rifle range, and we had no sooner unpacked than we found out that the whole platoon had to go on kitchen duty for a week. We finish our duty there next Friday night and I won't be a bit sorry because it's a rotten job. We have to work about 14 hours a day and I'm thankful it's only for a week. I'm one of the tinware wiper officers and it's a honey of a job, altho there are harder jobs than that, so I can't kick.

When we get out of the mess hall we start bayonet practice, which will probably last about a week and then we will probably be transferred to Quantico or some other Marine camp. Some of the fellows who took the test for radio and communications are going to be sent to a school at Quantico and I'm hoping to be one of them.

The first chance I get I'll have some pictures taken and send them. I don't know when that will be but probably within a couple of weeks. Tell the kids to write. Love, "BUD"

(This is the Marine's poem) — A poetic Marine composed it quite a while ago:

"The Best In Service"

You can have your Army khaki. You can have your Navy blue. But there is still another fighter. I'll introduce to you

His uniform is different, The best you've ever seen

The Germans call him "Devil Dog" But his real name is Marine.

He trains at Parris Island

The land that God forgot Where the sand is forty inches deep

And the sun is scorching hot

He has set many a table

And many a dish he's dried

He has learned to make a bed

And a steady broom can guide.

He has peeled a million onions,

And twice as many spuds,

And then he spends his leisure time

Just washing out his duds.

And now little girlie, take a tip

I'm giving it to you

Just pick yourself a Marine

There is nothing he can't do.

And when he gets to Heaven

To St. Peter he will tell

Another Marine reporting "Sir,"

I've served my time in hell.

WANDERING WITH WILLIE

ONE day last week several speed records were broken all in about four minutes (so we hear). The whole thing started when one fellow in our fair village decided that so long as Mama was away he would get a little extra "shut-eye" and remained in bed. Papa, however decided that it was time this same young fellow was up, but being busy told this young fellow's younger brother to go dig him out. "Nuff sed. Down Greenwood went the young fellow and set his bike near the front steps, pointing back up town and ready to mount in a hurry (wise boy). He then went in and filled a glass with Andover's famous cold spring water, went in the bedroom and dumped the glass (and he didn't throw it on the floor either). He then headed back for the garage on the bike, with "big brother" coming so fast behind him that his vest pockets were dipping sand. — And then, doggone it, young brother stayed rather close to pop every time he went out to pump gas or to go up the street, so we don't know yet whether "revenge was sweet."

AND then there's the enthusiastic villager who went up with the firemen Monday to fight grass fire and got so interested in his job that he overran the fire—result, not only are his trousers now cuffless but rather short as well. We don't know who it was (or do we)?

THIS pleasant bit of poetry was written way back in the days of World War No. 1, but has been revamped and brought up to World War 2. Perhaps some of you boys in camp could set it to music and make a doggone good marching tune out of it. Anyway here it is:

Glory Hallelujah!

Oh, may that Beast, the Fuhrer, float On open sea in open boat,

In bitter cold, without a coat— Glory Hallelujah!

Without a compass, sail or oar, A million miles away from shore

Where mighty waves beat high and roar— Glory Hallelujah!

Sharks rend his boat from stem to stern,

A big whale gulp him down in turn

And the devil get the whole concern, Glory Hallelujah!

Oh may that Beast, the Fuhrer dwell In darkest pits of deepest hell

And gnash his teeth and groan and yell— Glory Hallelujah!

And 'mid his roars and frantic cries, Oh may eternal ashes rise

And blow forever in his eyes— Glory Hallelujah!

In burning brimstone may he be While little devils dance in glee;

Then lock the door and lose the key, Glory Hallelujah!

Called on Grass Fire at Redmond Farm

The firemen were called to the Redmond farm on Greenwood Hill late Monday afternoon where they extinguished a grass fire which had gone out of control while the owners were burning over a section of the farm.
