Louisa's Letter

Answer to "Wonder" (Alabama)

Why don't you ask him if he has been having dates with the other girl on Sunday nights? Unless you are engaged to him, you have no right to ask him not to date other girls. It may be that he has not decided which of you two girls he likes best. If you like him, keep on dating him, but go with other people also.

LOUISA.

Dear Louisa:

I read all of your letters in the Galax Gazette and I am wondering if you could give me some advice.

Two years ago I met a very fine man down in Virginia and he is on my mind all the time. I go to Virginia about once a year and when I am down there I see a great deal of him.

I am married and have a wonderful husband and three lovely children. I just can't break up my home, but I am not satisfied at all the way it is. I was married at 16. I have told my husband everything and he is willing to give me a divorce and take care of the kids, but seems like I can't turn my home upside down. My husband is a real Christian man and loves me, but the other man is always on my mind.

WORRIED MOTHER (Ohio)

Answer:

Some of this letter has been omitted, but I judge that the writer's greatest mistake was in getting married too young. She missed all of good times that single girls have and when she should have been dating and playing, she was minding babies. Now her children are getting larger and she has more time to think about herself.

So often women and men who have missed their playtime when they were young and who took on responsibilities too early, try to turn back the clock and have some romance before they grow old. They become infatuated with some other person and imagine him or her endowed with all the graces and charm conceivable. Sometimes they go so far as to break up their homes, and how disillusioned most of them become when they finally get what they think they wanted. The old husband and the deserted home look mighty good when they dare to look back.

You are lucky, "Worried Mother" to have such a good and understanding husband and such nice children. Try to deserve them by refusing to let yourself think about this other man. You got married of your own accord, I presume, and you took a vow to love and honor your man for life. You brought three children in the world and your first duty is to them, and not to your own selfish desires.

You will get more happiness out of life by doing the right thing than by following the impulse of the moment. Good luck,

LOUISA.

Depends

Viola: "Do you believe in free speech?"

Percy: "That depends on whether I'm bigger than the other fellow."

It Shrinks in the Heat

"Is a ton of coal very much, dad?"

"That depends, son, on whether you are shoveling or buying it."
