Louisa's Letter

My father died several weeks ago and my two sisters and I have been urging mother to sell the old home and come and live with us. It is not a matter of money, as mother as an income sufficient to live on, if she continues to live in the old house. She is usually so reasonable, and she could spend a third of her time with each of us. We would not be worried about her staying alone if we knew she was always with one of us. But she seems determined to stay where she is and has asked an unmarried cousin of ours, to live with her.

Don't you think she would be happier with us than with a distant cousin in a big lonely house? DAUGHTER.

Arkansas.

Answer: I think your mother is a very wise woman. She will be happier in her own home where she has been mistress for so many years, than she would anywhere else. She will be free to go and come as she pleases, have whomsoever she chooses to visit her, and do as she pleases. She can get up at any hour without disturbing the in-laws and she will not be forever staying home with Johnny or Susie when their parent wish to go gallivanting.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

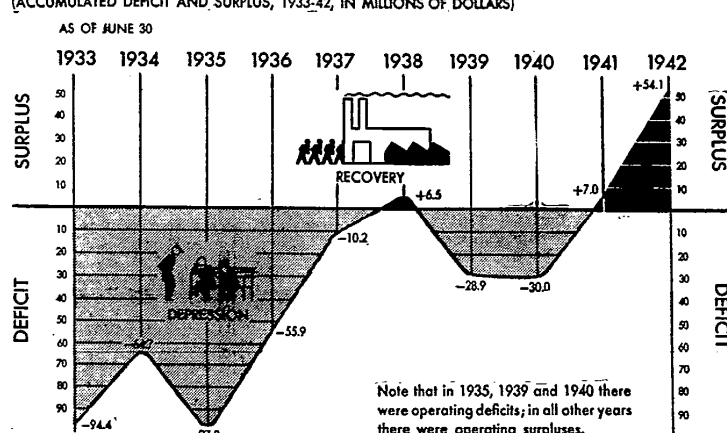

It's not a pleasant picture to contemplate, but War calls for "blood and sweat and tears." And the Army Medical Corps, with its efficient nurses and its volunteer Red Cross "Angels of Mercy," needs thousands of surgical beds for field and base hospitals on every front.

These beds cost approximately $22 each. They are the latest thing in modern hospital beds, with elevating springs. In some instances surgical cots are used in temporary field hospitals and there is a folding bed which may be used in ambulances. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps can buy many of these beds for the Army. You'll sleep better if you know our boys have every hospital comfort. Buy War Bonds every pay day. Invest ten percent of your income.

TEN YEARS OF NEW YORK STATE FINANCES

Note that in 1935, 1939 and 1940 there were operating deficits; in all other years there were operating surpluses. This chart, taken from the annual report for the fiscal year 1942 of Joseph V. O'Leary, Comptroller of New York State, shows how a deficit of $94,400,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1933 was converted into a surplus of $54,100,000 on June 30, 1942. An important factor in the surplus was the excess in revenues of $30,000,000 above the budget estimate last year. This year, for the first time, the New York State Comptroller has issued a streamlined summary report, illustrated with pictorial charts and photographs, to enable the average citizen to get a clear understanding of the intricate details of the State's financial picture.

RAISING KANE

Dear Louisa: I have a husband who despises slacks. We are planning to go to the beach and all the women will be wearing slacks. I hate to be odd, running around in dresses. What must I do? M. E. V. New Jersey.

Answer: Slacks are for the slim, and should never be worn by women who are slightly more than pleasingly plump. Perhaps that is your husband's objection to them. Why not buy culottes. They are much easier on the eyes of bystanders than slacks, when the wearer bulges in the wrong places. LOUISA.

Inflation is to be avoided, regardless of the regulations necessary to control prices.

Soap stands for cleanliness, sanitation, health, and civilized living; it is indispensable to human comfort. But soap has other values which become especially apparent in wartime, values which send carload lots of soap to many of our war production plants. Some of the new artificial rubber factories use enough soap to supply the homes of a small city.

In the processing of both artificial and reclaimed rubber, common soap is employed variously as a dispersing, lubricating, stabilizing, and wetting agent. In synthetic rubbers of the butadiene type the ingredients are emulsified in soapy water. In a widely used method for the utilization of reclaimed rubber, scrap rubber is ground up and mixed with ten per cent of soap. Then water is added gradually while the mixture is being cooked and stirred to make a latex which is almost, if not quite, equal to the original.

At present, however, the largest industrial consumer of soap is the textile industry, where soap finds application in almost every process of converting raw materials into finished fabrics—in scouring raw wool, in felting, in bleaching and cleaning rayon and cotton goods in dyeing, as a softening or filling agent, and in shower-proofing. Raw wool, cotton, and silk may contain as much as twenty to fifty per cent of dirt, which must be removed by repeated soap baths. More washings with soap and water are required as the water and fabric goes through printing processes.

Soap baths also enter into metal manufacturing routines. Steel ball bearings are thoroughly scrubbed in rotating drums, metal parts to be plated are first cleaned in a simple soap bath, and so on. As a lubricant to reduce friction and heat in wire drawing, tube drawing, and metal rolling under terrific pressure, it has been found
