HIGH SPEED FOUND TOUGH ON TIRES

At 60 miles an hour, tires wear out two and a half times as fast as they do at 40 miles an hour. That's only a sample of what speed does to your tires.

You can help extend the life of your tires by holding down your speed. You'll save gasoline and oil, too. Make "Never over 40" your slogan for the duration.

You can also save tires, gasoline, oil by joining a group-ride club. Double up to save gas and those precious tires. Call your War Transportation Committee for details.

By the end of 1943, U. S. production of aluminum will be approximately 2.1 billion pounds—six and one-half times 1939 production.
