Miss Catherine Perry, leader. LESSON SUNDAY SCHOOL THE ALCOHOL PROBLEM International Sunday School Lesson for September 6, 1942. Golden Text: "The way of the wicked shall perish." Psalm 1: 6. Lesson Text: Genesis 13: 13; 19: 23-25; Deut. 32: 31-33; Amos 6: 1-7. One of the interesting things about the Bible is that in chronicling the events of the ages, there is no effort to smooth over, or eliminate the evil occurrences. The Bible tells of the evil, as well as the good. In its descriptions of its characters, there is no inclination to make them perfect, heroes, but everything, good or evil, in each life is told. This, to us, is one evidence of the authenticity of the Bible as God's word. As we think of our subject for this lesson, it is well for us to trace the effects of this problem from the beginning of recorded time down to the present. Our first reference is from the first book of the Bible, Genesis, and takes us back to the days of Abraham and Lot. When the time came that the herds of these two men became so great that they could no longer live together, Abraham, the elder of the two and uncle of Lot, gave the younger man selfishly chose the choosing the site he desired. The younger man selfishly chose the best site, the plain of the Jordan, and Abraham lived in the land of Canaan. As it happened, the city of Sodom was nearby where Lot lived, and while Lot knew of the city's reputation for wickedness, he foolishly believed that it would make no difference to him and his family. How different he found this to be. He found that the influence of his wicked neighbors resulted in the degradation of his family and the ruin of his own happiness. And the same is true today. Our environment and our companions make or mar our lives, depending upon whether they are good or evil. The second reference given for our consideration is known as the "Svan Song" of Moses, who in these verses, compares the possessions of the Israelites, as God's chosen people, with the possessions of the people around them. The rock refers to God; the vine to their national stock; the grapes to their deeds. Isn't it a pity that men are not more cognizant of the fact that righteousness is more advantageous in the long run, to them than unrighteousness. Read carefully the selection from Amos. Is there anything in it that reminds you of our modern civilization? With the nations of the world at war, conditions have changed somewhat from a year or two ago, but there is a striking similarity of conditions pictured. We should always remember that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." The following taken from Tarbell's Teacher's Guide, should make us think: "When Dr. Daniel Poling was asked if he believed that the present situation in the world was comparable to the period which immediately preceded the fall of the Roman Empire; if our present day civilization were actually in danger of destruction, he replied as follows: "As to the Roman Empire, one of the greatest historians, Gibbon, in his monumental work, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," gives five reasons for the debacle. His conclusions are significant, since he was not a Christian, but a non-believer. "First: Rapid increase of divorce, with the undermining of the sanctity of the home, which is the basis of society. "Second: Higher and higher taxes; the spending of public moneys for bread and celebrations. "Third: The mad craze for pleasure; sports becoming each year more exciting and more brutal. "Fourth: The building of gigantic armaments, when the real enemy was within; the decadence of the people. "Fifth: The decay of religion; faith fading into mere form, losing touch with life and becoming impotent to guide it. "These five reasons give a twentieth-century American citizen serious pause. Read them again."
