Post-War Transportation

ACCORDING to postwar plans now on paper, the United States expects that its international airlines will fly 140,000 miles, 60,000 of those miles over new routes. Where before the war, passengers were the principal load, it is expected that air express and freight will add tremendously to the future cargo of the airlines.

Just as an example to illustrate the possibilities, air express handled thru La Guardia field during May, averaged more than 1,800 shipments a day, a 27.8 per cent increase over May, 1943. For the fivemonth period, January to May, at the same airport, express shipments increased 23 per cent over 1943.

Fortunately, the United States has express facilities in almost every hamlet, which, under a coordinated pick-up and delivery system, are rendering universal service that can be extended to meet any future air transport requirements.

As usual, private enterprise in our country is one jump ahead of demand. We can never afford to be the tail-end of the procession in future air developments for either passengers or cargo shipments, as this war has so dramatically demonstrated.

Swat 'Em

SWAT, pulverize, kill, catch, squash and eliminate all flies. Make sure they're dead. If you like, perhaps your killing will carry with it more joy. Try imagining a toothy Jap face on them but don't knock the house walls down with this idea. Flies are pretty nearly as rotten and dangerous as the Japs and Nazis, for you may remember that the average ones carry more than a million bacteria and a real garbage fly carries as many as six million. Talk about "bacteria war!" It's here now.

War on flies is part of the endless struggle between mankind and the insect world. There is said to be no certainty yet that man will triumph over the insects on this planet. It is a fact that if a large percentage of the insects did not die in infancy and in their own battle for survival, man would lose the fight in a short time.

If the fly in your house is in the habit of visiting garbage cans and even if he is not, he is dangerous and no fit associate. Swat him, and hard!

Most any cook is good if you are hungry enough.

If you don't like high prices, the only solution is to stay away from restaurants and night clubs where high prices are charged.

So long as we can afford to throw away two-inch cigarette butts, we're not insolvent as individuals or \' as a nation.

Tiin a Pailroaa carries a Railroad THAT'S NEWS!

AND that's exactly what's happen-Ing today on the Erie and other American Railroads. Locomotives, freight cars, and essential replacement parts are made here at home for use in the invasion areas. Loaded in sections, or actually carried in tow, they travel by rail to embarkation points. Placed in operation overseas, they form a final link in the chain of supply which begins in factories and farms here in America.

By the end of this year, 4,000 locomotives and 60,000 freight cars produced in this country will be in active service overseas. And these are only a small part of the tremendous war load now being carried by your railroads.

But we're getting the job done, and with the help of the public, shippers, and government agencies, the Erie and other American Railroads will continue to carry the load for Victory.
