In much the same way, the activity in your community, as it expands, makes its influence felt farther and farther away. Through the products shipped from this area and sold in distant markets, your town extends its influence many hundreds of miles away.

Through your purchasing power which reaches out and brings you food, clothing, and other manufactured articles, your town is linked with distant cattle ranges, citrus groves, mines, wheat fields, and hundreds of busy manufacturing plants.

Helping your town expand its economic influence has always been the aim of the Erie Railroad. By providing better and better low-cost mass transportation to move the goods in and out of your community, the Erie is working to help make your home town more prosperous, not only for the present but for the years to come.
