RURALIISTENING

FM RADIOS — While many models of FM radios are al. ready appearing on the mar-ket, G.L.F. is withholding final selection of FM mstruments under tests now undersults of these tests will permit quality receivers especially adapted to rural receiving conditions. They will have higher sensitivity and better selectivity. A selection of FM models will be available, and included in the G.L.F. line will be high quality console radios incorporating FM and AM reception and phonograph-radio combinations.

AM RADIOS - The sets now available are top-quality table model AM receivers in the lower cost bracket. Improved selectivity in these sets permits "sorting" of closely channeled programs and cuts down program interference.
