Lincoln's Answer

by Joyce Day In the days of the Civil War, a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln was a visitor at the White House. "I had been spending three weeks with Mr. Lincoln as his guest. One night—it was just after the battle of Bull Run — I was restless and could not sleep. From the private room where the President slept, I heard low tones, for the door was partly open. Instinctively, I wandered in, there I saw a sight which I have never forgotten. It was the President, kneeling before an open Bible, his back was toward me. shall never forget his prayer: 'Oh. thou God, that heard Solomon i the night when he prayed and cried for wisdom, hear me. Let's each one lay hold of this God: "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray . . . then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their (II Chronicles 7;14)

Talking-On Your Phone by Judie Baker

Of all he faults your family can have, the worst is their telephone manner. When it comes to the "makes or breaks" them in the use of Bell's Folly, any adult must bow to a teenager as an authority. It is doubtful if you can teach parents much at their age. Still, older people need to understand the importance of the phone.

You are an expert. But your parents are critical about the way ye use the phone. On the telephone, you feel freer than you do face-to-face. You are also more relaxed and think of more things o say. That's the first thing parents have to get for communication. Let you get settled in a comfortable V, spine against one door jamb, feet up the other and everyone in the house has an urgent call to make.

Words aren't always the most effective tools for teaching. For instance, no article I could write would change your telephone habits. I wouldn't want to try. You may not teach your parents how to use the phone by "jawing" at them. You might show them by your own manner. After all, you are an expert and haven't got any faults. Or Have You?
