Dear Johnny

by Joyce Day "I have been putting off writing to you for five years, but I can't any longer. I am looking forward to your coming to school next fall, -and I hope you are, too. There will be about fifty little boys and girls here along with you. Just think of all the new friends and playmates you are going to have!" This is the opening paragraph in a copy of the letter sent to each child who will enter kindergarten next fall. The letter went on to describe the various activies and games that the child would enjoy during his first year of These letters, addressed personally to each child, are an important part of the orientation of the new pupil. A personal welcome to each child means much more to him than any parent's flowery description of school life. To a child, a letter such as this means a lot. He begins to look forward to school life and to think of learning with eagerness. And ence a child has such an outlook, he is apt to enjoy school more, get the best things out of it, and consequently do better in his work. To be sure, much of the glamour of school is lost after the first few years. Yet, a child who likes school at the beginning often continues to enjoy it.

Yes, these letters are important. • If your child received one in the mail today, don't just shrug it off as foolishness. Help him to get the best possible start in school. Remember! He will make up tomerrow's America.

Richburg Defeats

Last Saturday Richburg defeated Andover in a baseball game, 7-6 at the Richburg parallelogram. The Panthers misconstrued so much in the field, thus leading to the Richburg runs. Dickie Baker was pitching for Andover and increased in effectiveness as the game progressed. Andover's boys were getting on base, but were not scoring. In the last inning of the contest, Andover rallied to within one tally of Richburg's 7 markers. But, misfortune then befull the local lads as faulty baserunning reduced their chances of scoring and the game ended.

However, the Andever hitting was not so energetic. The hits came at such sparadic intervials that only, eight men were able to trot across the plate. The Lck of hitting and incongruous fielding on the part of some cost the locals the game. Due to this and the three following contests the Andover baseball team finished the season in last place in the league.

Activities Banquet Held

by Joyce Day "What do we gain from activities? Why do we have them?" These were questions answered by Mr. Fred Gertz, Dean of Alfred University, at the Activities banquet held last Wednesday night. In his address, the Dean stressed the importance of activities and showed how they help us to become better leaders and followers. He also made a point of getting along with others in activities.
