Greenwood Central School News

Donna Wallace, a junior at the Greenwood Central School, has received word that her poem entitled "Evil, The Undying" will be published in 1963 by the National High School Poetry Association in Los Angeles, California.

The poem was written as an assignment given by James DeMarte, English teacher at the school.

Donna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wallace of Rexville, N. Y.

Only routine matters confronted the Board of Education of the Greenwood Central School at its regular meeting Monday.

The Board received a report stating that next fall it would be necessary to complete tax collection 15 days earlier because of recent legislation. The problem was studied and the Principal asked to contact the assessors and supervisors in each town to see what steps can be taken to comply with the requirement. Because of the earlier time limit, it will be necessary that tax rolls be in the hands of the school at an earlier date than heretofore. There will be no change in the length of time available for paying the taxes since collection has to start earlier to comply with regulations. No appointment has yet been made to fill the vacancy of tax collector next July caused by the resignation of Mary Ella Baker.

Because of increasing failures and maintenance costs on a motor running the vacuum pump, it was voted to trade this motor in on a new one. The motor to be traded is over 8 years old and has been on a stand-by basis for some time.

The foreign student exchange program operated by the International Fellowship organization was discussed briefly with the Board being informed as to its basic operation. In view of present financial demands upon students and student's time, it was felt that the school should not be involved directly with fund raising for this purpose. It was suggested that perhaps the Home-School Club might be an appropriate organization to carry on this activity if its members were interested.

Trickling of requests for an adult class in Driver Education was considered. Because of the change in basis of state apportionment, funds for this would have to come from those intended for operating the school. The Board felt it unwise to undertake the venture at this time.
