HAPPENINGS
 of Local Interest

The Mummies of Fredonia College are presenting one of William Shakespeare's most colorful bawdy comedies, "The Taming of the Shrew" as their spring play to be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 9, 10, 11 at 8-15 p. m., in the Old Main Auditorium. Jacqueline Tornatore, a senior speech arts major and Robert McClure, a senior music major, will carry the leading roles in this production. Rob who portrays Petruchio, the adventurer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McClure.

In the Yankeetown Column from the Dunnellon Press, Dunnellon, Fla., a weekly publication presented to us by P. H. Hackett the following item of interest to local people: The Church of God is raising money for a floor in the Church. Donations are given in memory of the late Stephen Ryback. Mr. Ryback was a former resident of Andover.

The Spring Concert presented by Andover Central School Music Department under the supervision of Mrs. Carol McClure in Chorus and Gerald McClure, instrumental, is always a highlight in the year's program. The special feature of the piano soloist, Diane Vars with the band accompaniment: "Slaughter on Tenth Ave." by Richard Rogers, brought much applause. "Variations on a Handmade theme for Eight Handclappers" by Warren Benson, was presented by four boys and four girls: Larry Cook, Donald Harvey, Michael Miglis, David Rossman, Jean Harvey, Diane Vars, Judy Woodruff and Janis Reil, respectively. The four boys mentioned above, were warmly and justly rewarded for their percussion rendition, written for tenor drum, snaredrum, milk bottle, triangle, wood blocks. As the audience left the auditorium there was a wholehearted appreciation expressed for the evening's program with a well-displayed arrangement of different types of music and techniques presented by well-trained students.
