Editorial

by Lee Kessler

"THAT LAST FULL MEASURE"
 This does not apply to the stamina of war veterans, but rather to the energy and effort needed to prepare for the climatic ending of a school year, the regents.

There are now ten more days of school left—ten days to make up for lost time during the year. Can it be done? If you're wiled away the year, and haven't assimilated any knowledge, it probably can't be done? If you've wiled possible, if you've gained anything from your studies, and if you expend a great effort, to still come out on top. To do this, however, requires tremendous concentration and persistence.

If you possess these two powers and are willing to work from now until the end, it will pay off. However, to recap the rewards of study, requires more than just talking about it. Too often, students verbally outline impressive study plans, but lack the initiative to carry through with them. These are the students who are due for a check on June 21.

Thus, if you are trailing behind, summon all your energy, plan thorough study habits, and above all, expend that energy to at least end the year with one last full measure!

Memorial Day Assembly

by Lynn Cable

The date is May 29, 1963. It is 3:00 p. m. and the tears are falling on your ironing. May I make a suggestion? Why don't you forego the agony of your favorite soap opera this one day and attend the Memorial Day Assembly at Andover Central School?

Where would our country be without these men for whom Memorial Day has been set aside? Let me ask you another question. Where WILL our Country be if we can't take time to remember them? It isn't enough for you to stand on Main St., for fifteen minutes to watch the parade and then go on a picnic on Memorial Day. Do that too, but come to the Assembly the day before.

The price of a renewed patriotic feeling and the wonderful sense that you took time to remember is only one hour of your time. You will hear the Gettysburg Address given by Robert Vickers and "In Flanders Fields" recited by Judy Woodruff. Mr. Craig Snyder, Legion County Commander, and our Principal, Mr. James Kessler, will say a few words and Col. Almond Fisher of Tonawanda will be the guest speaker. The Andover Central School Marching Band, directed by Mr. Gerald McClure, will also play.

So, on May 29th at 3:00, I hope to see you at the Assembly. It's neither illegal, immoral or fattening and it will do you much good.

Downbeats

Dianne Vars, Donald Harvey, Lee Kessler and Mary Ellen Smith will play their solos at Johnson City, Saturday, May 25th. These solos, which will be graded, will be presented between 4:00 and 5:00 p. m.
