A KitchenAid Dishwasher
by Habart Mfg. Co.
Scrubs Every Single Dish
SCRUBS —
Yes'm. The big blue wash arm in every KitchenAid Dishwasher scrubs each dish, with detergent and hot water, under pressure, hundreds of times! Washes with more power than the action of any other dishwasher.
No wonder you don't have to hand-rinse dishes before you put them in a KitchenAid.
No wonder more than half of all the KitchenAid Dishwashers sold are bought on the recommendation of someone who already has one.
And because washing is only half of what a dishwasher does, KitchenAid also dries a different and better way. Other dishwashers use heat alone to bake dishes dry. But KitchenAid dries them with gently flowing sanitized hot air that's safe for good plasticware and fine china.
What's more, a KitchenAid goes on doing this for you year after year with astonishing dependability. It's not at all uncommon to find KitchenAid Dishwashers that have never had a service call in 7, 8, 9 years of daily use.
That's because we have a background of over 70 years' experience making dishwashing equipment for fine hotels, restaurants and hospitals. Places where dependability means everyday.
So we build that same dependability into your KitchenAid Home Dishwasher.
Of course KitchenAid cost a little more to buy (but less to own). The best always does.
