Allegany County Civil Defense

Robert L. Coulter, Director

A number of the County industries are undertaking a program to distribute to their employees a booklet advising of the State Civil Defense Commission's home fallout shelter counselling service. Participating in this are: Air Preheater Co.; Acme Electric Corp.; Capital Plastics Inc.; and Worthington Corp.

The booklet provides the means whereby the filling in of simple information about a person's home, the State Civil Defense Counselling Service on receipt of the tear sheets, will compute the shelter protection factor in the house and advise methods of improving the facilities for protection against radiation from fallout.

County Director Robert L. Coulter in commenting on this program, said that the Civil Defense office had requested the State to assist them in developing through this medium, better home fallout shelters as public shelters are scarce in the County.

The cooperation of the industries contacted so far has been 100% and it is the feeling of the management that this program is insurance of people would take advantage of it, in the event of a war situation wherein any type of nuclear weapons are used. The Civil Defense Office advises that these booklets are available to anyone not reached through plant distribution. A supply is kept at the County Civil Defense Office.
