

C of C Announces Plans For Christmas Decorations

Harold Huffcut, President of the Andover Chamber of Commerce, today announced the Chamber's plans for promoting the decoration of the business section as well as the residential section for the Christmas-Holiday Season.

Elmo Barden, Chairman, Harold Huffcut and "Red" Allen were appointed to the committee with the following plans having been made: The large Christmas Tree at the South End of Main St., donated by the Chamber President Harold Huffcut as in previous years, was secured and put up by the FFA members of Andover Central School and lights were put on and hooked up by Village Street Superintendent, Frank Cahill.

The judging committee of the C of C will tour the Village the week before Christmas and will make Citations for the Residents who have their homes decorated in different styles and categories such as the 1st one; the most novel; the most elaborate; the best lighted; most original; etc.

It has also been suggested that perhaps the Churches could make arrangements to put religious scenes in the windows of the empty stores along Main St. This would certainly improve the looks of our Village to visitors instead of being confronted by those empty vacant holes with windows that need washing and cleaning up.

Many of the local Businessmen have been contacted and have agreed to go along with a new idea and plan whereby they will furnish a tree and lights to be put out in front of their places of business and decorated by the student groups of students from Andover Central School.

The Chamber of Commerce will award cash prizes to the Student Groups that make up the best judged displays. The following Businessmen and Stores have already agreed to participate: "Doc" Common, The H. H. Williams Co.; Ford & Peckham; Vars Jewelry Store; Ordiway's Restaurant; Vars Pharmacy; The Market Basket; Sacketts Food Market; The Citizens National Bank; Baker's Hardware; The Sugar Bowl in conjunction with Ordiway's Barber Shop; and The Andover News.

If any other Business Proprietors desire to join in this plan it is requested that they call the Andover News, Phone: 478-5233 as soon as possible so that arrangements can be made for a group to be selected to join the contest.

The different groups from ACS will draw participating merchants names from a hat and will then contact their sponsor and make all the arrangements with him as to the size of the tree, number of lights that he has available, means of putting up the tree and securing it fast and will then go ahead with their own original ideas of decorations.

Mr. James Kessler, Supervising Principal of Andover Central School and members of the Chamber of Commerce will take care of the selection of the groups this week so that the students will be enabled to start their plans and co-ordination this week-end if they desire.

With the Village Decorations and Lights already in place these plans when fulfilled should make Andover second to none with Yuletide Decorations.

News That's Print To Fit

Br-r-r, guess winter is really with us now! Last week was like spring weather almost but the new week started out with a portent of things to come. The true story is told by the recorded low and high given us by the boys down at the Pump Station and are: 27th—L-30, H-38; 28th—L-27, H-45; 29th—L-31, H-31; 1st—L-5, H-17; 2nd—L-12, H-16.

However, we have been lucky so far since we have only had enough snow on the ground and roads to remind us that if we don't have our winter tires on yet — they should be!

Speaking of winter tires reminds us that we saw a news item that might be of interest to our readers that are interested in the new metal-studded tires that are on the market and are legal only in certain states. If you were worried about driving in Pennsylvania with them on your car — your worries are over, since Pennsylvania lifted the ban on these tires effective Monday, December 1st.

The action followed a ruling by the State Justice Department last week that the cleated tires would do little harm to road—and far do little harm to roads—and far

Well, the annual deer season is running about true to form—or a little worse. Up in our hunting area, we haven't seen any hunters trespassing on posted property—but there have been a lot of posted signs that have been torn down.

We also have seen one dead doe in the woods, and, according to Carlton, there are around 10 or twelve dead doe around Tip Top and Kenyon Road. This is the area where hunters with Monroe County Licensed Cars were observed at work.

Quite a few of the local hunters have been lucky with Bob J. getting one the last day of his vacation. However, "Fred" & "Red" still have search warrants out for those elusive Bucks.

Last Saturday, after cleaning the dairy barn housing some 50 odd cattle, alone no less — of course the fact that the boys have a new barn cleaner so that all manual work that is required is to push the "honey-scraper" towards the gutter helps a great deal, we hunted all day and only kicked out two bucks. There were plenty of deer—but no antlers. In fact at the end of the day the total count of deer parading by us on watch stood at 14, with all of these being well within gunshot distance. Oh well, the morrow Saturday coming up!

While on the hunting theme, Ron Hoagland brought us in a "Bear Story" along with the bare facts of the case since it pertained to his son-in-law, Ronald Huegel of 133 Ross Ave., Buffalo a technician at Allied Chemical Plastics Division.

Mr. Huegel dropped his bear with a head shot at about 25 yds. while hunting near Angelica the first day of big game season. However, according to "Ron", it was a good thing that he made his first shot count since that was the only slug he had left.

It seems that the hunter has a 20-gauge shotgun with sights mounted on it and he had used up all but one slug doing some target practice to get it sighted in properly. Then along came Mr. Bruin who charged him shaking his head and growling as if he had a bone to pick with him. Thus if he hadn't nailed him with his one and only shot—more than likely he would have been doing some slipping and sliding along with his running.

We almost forgot one deer story —it seems that we have heard several reports that a full grown deer has been seen roaming around the Village Streets—but for what purpose we haven't been able to find out.

Does Your Operator's License Expire Dec. 30th

If you are one of 600,000 New York State drivers whose operator's license expires on December 31, you will be getting a punch card renewal application in the mail within the next few days.

The Department of Motor Vehicles began the mailing of the renewal forms a week ago in batches of 120,000 with the last of the 600,000 going out last Friday.

On approximately 200,000 of the applications, drivers due to renew will find the third words, "Eye Test Required," imprinted. This indicates that the driver will be asked for proof that his vision meets the State standard of 20/40 in either or both eyes, with or without corrective lenses.

Such proof can be in the form of a certificate from a licensed eye specialist or physician but not an optician, or the applicant may have his eyes tested in a Department issuing office.

You may expect to prove your vision-meets the standard if your last name begins with initials "A" through "F" and you are urged by Motor Vehicle Commissioner William S. Hults not to delay going through the renewal process. By doing so early, you can mail the completed application and required renewal stub, also known as the "conviction record", plus the fee of $3 to the nearest issuing office.
