VETERAN'S FACILITIES

Governor Rockefeller acted quickly this week to stimulate safeguards for the interests of veterans who would be affected by reported plans of the Veterans Administration to close certain regional offices and other veterans' facilities in New York State.

In a telegram to Representative Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn, Chairman of the Steering Committee of the New York State Congressional Delegation, the Governor said:

"I am deeply concerned by reports that the Veterans' Administration is planning to close the veterans' hospital and domiciliary in Bath as well as hospital facilities at Sunpoint, near Tupper Lake, and Castle Point, near Beacon.

"Such moves could mean severe hardships to the veterans served by these facilities, and to their families. Moreover, such action would have a severe impact upon the economies of the areas involved."

The Governor called "also disturbing" the report "that the veterans' Administration intends to close two of its five regional offices in the state, a move which would leave only one office to service the entire upstate area, Buffalo in the far western part of the state."

"I strongly urge", he said, "that the Steering Committee of the New York State Congressional Delegation, under your chairmanship, make every appropriate step to determine the basis for this apparently arbitrary action in order to assure that New York's veterans are not discriminated against and their interests are fully protected."

News That's Print To Fit

Contrary to what was reported over TV as Olean being the coldest spot in the nation Saturday night and Sunday morning—we think that Andover had a good chance of being nominated for that dubious title.

The boys down at the Pump Station have the recorded facts which show that it was -34 for the low on Sunday the 17th of Jan. The other recorded high and low for each date is: Friday the 15th—low -21, High 2 above; Saturday the 16th—Low -3, High 4 above; Sunday the 17th—LOW -34, High 11; Monday the 18th—Low 6, High 17; Tuesday the 19th—Low -3, High 17; Wednesday the 20th—Low 14, High 30; and today, Thursday the 21st—Low 9, and the High—a vertible heat wave of 36.

Somewhere we read that Alaska had been having a cold wave with the thermometer hovering around -50, and they called it 5 dog weather. Two dogs across the foot of the bed and three dogs across the middle.

Thus we could call it 3 dog weather here in Andover—although we would more than likely have to call Alaska to find out the proper distribution of the dogs as it wouldn't be quite cricket to divide them up in any other manner than single (and whole).

Speaking of the weather reminds us that "Jim" Burgett called us Sunday morning to report that despite the 10 below temperature outside at that time—there was a Robin outside their window perched in a near-by tree.

Evidently this poor, crazy, mixed-up bird must have some Alaska blood in him as it was still around Monday—and in fact had a companion with him. However, during yesterday's snow storm there was only 1 in evidence—so either the other one "flew the coop" or else decided that discretion was the better part of valor—and stayed in its hiding place.

While talking about the weather reminds us of a closely linked subject—skating.

We noticed that someone had plowed the Pond the other day so that the skaters could have a ball. However, there was one spot that looked pretty wet so we did a little investigating.

According to our source of information, Fay and Herm are reported to have been the "Good Samaritans"—and in the process, one of the wheels of the jeep went thru the ice. One of the pair is supposed to "have gotten his feet wet" on this project so-o-o, let's use a little deduction. If it was "Herm's" Jeep, more than likely he was driving it—so that would leave Fay out in the cold wouldn't it? Thus we guess anyone interested in the temperature of the water of the Pond would have to ask Fay about it wouldn't they?

Maybe Fay was just trying to get a little ahead of George S. who we understand was planning on a little ice fishing, and just couldn't get his car started for the trek.

At any rate Fay didn't seem to be any the worse for wear at the C of C dinner last night as he managed to sit up and take his regular form and quantity of nourishment.

Well, Well, Well—we see that the Mayor and that there Editor Feller are back at it again. Here the new year is just 3 weeks along—and it already seems like old times!

That sure is prompt action on that little old blurb about the electric power rates! Suppose that it could possibly be a sore spot that was rubbed a little bit? If that is the case, it sure is calling attention to the fact isn't it?

By the way, we wonder how things are coming along in the Electric Department as far as the selection for a head for it is concerned? We know that things seem to be running along—the
