Karen J. Manning of Oneonta was crowned Queen of St. Pat's Ball at Alfred University. The Saturday night ball climaxed the annual St. Pat's Festival, which this year honored Dean John F. McMahon of the State University College of Ceramics at AU. The crowning was performed by William Eckman of Buffalo, the student chosen to reign as St. Patrick during the annual week-end festival based on St. Patrick's role as patron saint of ceramicists. The festival opened Friday with a 45-minute parade. First prize floats were by Lambda Chi Alpha in the men's division, and by Theta Theta Chi in the women's division. Following the parade, students went to the Men's Gymnasium where senior ceramic students were knighted as members of the Order of St. Patrick, and an informal Irish Hop was staged. Also on Friday night were demonstrations of glass blowing and lampworking and displays. Saturday activities included an afternoon concert by the Modern Folk Quartet, in the gym of neighboring Alfred Tech.

Allegany County American Legion Auxiliary officials have announced they will discontinue the magazine, fund-raising campaign conducted annually in the past. The campaign, undertaken by the National Organization Service, a subsidiary of Look Magazine, provided the Auxiliary with money which they used to purchase hospital equipment for home use by county residents. Mrs. Marian N. Macomber of Canaseraga, hospital equipment chairman, said the Auxiliary will have no representatives conducting magazine sales for them in the future. She urged homeowners to report to proper authorities any sales persons claiming to have Auxiliary backing. It was emphasized, however, that hospital equipment still will be available for residents' use.
