Many parents remember—if perhaps vaguely—the seemingly impossible feat of the solo crossing of the Atlantic by air. That was, of course, Charles Lindbergh, who flew from New York to Paris on May 21, 1927.

Today, the dream of "flying" to the Moon non-stop is almost coming true. Very shortly some man will see what the surface of the Moon is really like.

All the progress has come through the discoveries of scientists. Thousands of Americans are dedicating their lives to science. It makes a person feel just a little bit small when he thinks of the things scientists have discovered and will discover in the years to come.

TEACHER RECOGNITION

O ye! who teach the ingenious youth of nations,
 Holland, France, England, Germany or Spain,
 I pray ye flog them upon all occasions,
 It mends their morals, never mind the pain.

—Byron

Although this verse refers to teachers of countries other than the United States, it cannot be overlooked that our nation has produced some of the finest teachers and educators in the world. And so important are they to the growth of our nation.

There are so many important ways in which a teacher influences the youth of a country. From the very beginning, a teacher must be a guide for his pupils and must set the examples and rules on which the pupil must build his life. Teachers do play an important role in the development of a student's moral standards and ideals and if, as stated in the above verse, "struggling to mend their morals", that, too, is supplied by the teacher.

We students at A.C.S. certainly owe a great deal to our teachers and even if we are sometimes reluctant to admit it, we have a larger share of the finer teachers right here.

Last Tuesday Andover traveled to Scio to see who would hold the spot since each team had both won two games and had not lost any. In the top half of the second with two men on base, Charlie Joyce hit a run scoring single. Then Bob Joyce hit a ground ball that the shortstop missed and scored two more runs. Then Scio opened up with two runs in the third and scored two more in the fifth. Final score — Andover 3, Scio 4. This put Andover in second place with a record of 2-1.

Senior Interview

This week Sandra Lee Tidd steps into the spotlight. Sandra, or Sandy as she is known to her classmates, was born July 19, 1947 to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tidd. Sandy has two younger brothers, "Rick" and "Skeet".

Sandy has been very active throughout High School. She has been a member of FHA, for four years, serving as vice-president in her junior year, and she is Parliamentarian this year. Sandy has been a member of each chorus, GAA, and Hi Herald for three years. Sandy also participated in the water ballet. "Sometimes you must learn to accept things as they are", is Sandy's philosophy, and her pet peeve is people who feel they are better than everybody else. Among some of Sandy's favorites we find the color, light blue; movie "South Pacific"; and food, steak. Through out high school Sandy has majored in math and science, and her favorite subject is biology. Sandy took part in both class plays. She played the part of "Susie" in the Junior play and she was also an usherette. In our Senior play she stepped into the role of Elsie Patterson.

From all of us the best of luck for a happy and successful future goes to Sandy.
