Aliens Must Report Addresses

District Director William J. King of the Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that the annual alien address report program usually causes a sharp rise in the number of applications for naturalization.

The law requires all aliens in the United States, with few exceptions to report their addresses each January. Throughout the United States almost thirty per cent more application for naturalization are received during the months of January, February and March than are received during other months. Mr. King attributes this sudden rise to the Alien Address Report Program.

Aliens not required to make this report are diplomats and those persons accredited to certain international organizations.

Forms for making the reports will be available to aliens at all Post Offices and offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service during the month of January. Mr. King indicated that aliens desiring information concerning naturalization or similar matters should obtain the forms at an office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service where personnel trained in these fields will be available to answer inquiries.

Assembly Speaker Supports School Aid

Albany — Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea has announced his support for a school aid increase in the 1970 - 71 state fiscal year. These increases would be over amounts scheduled to be paid under existing formulas and under formulas scheduled to go into effect July 1, 1970.

While the final allocation of resources is dependent on the total budgetary picture as it unfolds, studies conducted by the Ways and Means Committee indicate that a school aid program of this magnitude could be funded without an increase in state taxes.

The school aid program the Speaker supports would not only permit the continuation of aid to schools at their same general levels but would also recognize increases in the unit costs of education by an increase in the shared cost ceiling.

Speaker Duryea credited fiscal prudence on the part of Governor Rockefeller and the Republican Legislature and the high level of academic activity in New York State as the major factors contributing to a possible school aid increase. Mr. Duryea said that his proposed school aid increase is needed to maintain the excellence of our schools and to lighten the almost intolerable burden of local property taxes on the home owner of this state.

The Speaker noted that in-depth studies of school aid formulas are being conducted by the Joint Legislative Committee on Education, the newly created Commission on Educational Finance and in the Assembly by the Standing Committee on Education and the Ways and Means Committee.

Specific recommendations as to the precise formula aspects must await the evaluation of all executive and legislative proposals that will be forthcoming in the weeks to come.

For Winter Fun — The Snow Machine

The hottest thing on the outdoor scene right now, even on cold winter days, is the snowmobile. While it's replacing dog teams in the Arctic and serves as transportation for trappers and foresters, the greatest demand is from sportsmen — those of us who enjoy the outdoors all year 'round.

While picking up my new Ski-Doo the other day, I learned from the Bombardier people that snowmobile sales are now greater than outboard motor sales in some parts of the country. The industry has been doubling each year, and they foresee the time when snowmobiles are as important to the outdoor scene as motor boats.

Safe operation, however, is a concern of Bombardier, and they have cooperated with the National Safety Council to publish a list of Do's and Don'ts for snowmobile operation. I'm going to follow them, and they will make your winter more fun, too.

Do obtain operating instructions, and do keep a seated or kneeling position while in motion. Do lengthen the throttle cable when teaching children how to drive, so that it can not exceed more than 25 per cent of speed. Warn against over-confidence and never let a child operate a machine alone.

Do play safe with children aboard, avoid treacherous sidehills and broken terrain, check frequently to see they are riding correctly.

Do check your lights before snowmobiling at night, do not depend on the moon, stay on established trails, do not break new trails.

Do use a tow-bar when pulling a trailer or sled — it avoids collisions on sudden stops and prevents side-sway.

Do dress warmly, waterproof boots are a must.

Do carry, when on safari, snowshoes for each person, extra fuel, emergency rations, first aid kit, flares, and an axe.

Do secure your snowmobile properly when trailering.

Don't cut across another's right-of-way; if in doubt throttle down or stop; courtesy pays.

Don't attempt to cross ice before checking thickness.

Don't jump snowbanks, or speed across a highway or public road.

Don't damage fences or other property.

Don't be a snow-rodder — leave cowboying to cowboys.

Don't operate a snowmobile around skiers.

Don't leave your key in the ignition — an invitation to an accident or theft.

Don't run on railroad tracks you can not hear approaching trains.

NUTRITION AND PREGNANCY

Young women who eat sensibly will need to make only a few changes in their food habits when they become pregnant and while nursing their babies.

Food surveys show us, however, that many teen-age girls have poor eating habits. And we see birth difficulties and needless problems for young mothers that definitely can be related to the poor eating habits they practiced earlier.

But let's assume you have been eating sensibly and now you are pregnant. Or, if you've been eating poorly, perhaps now that you are pregnant you will be motivated to change your ways.

It is true you will be eating for two, but that does not mean you will double what you eat.

For Baby's Growth

At first your unborn baby will be so small that his demands for food will hardly be noticeable at all. Later, however, your appetite will probably increase and you will want extra food. The extra foods you eat should be the ones your baby needs for growth.

You will need more protein, minerals and vitamins. But how much more should you eat? Your doctor will advise you, of course. And doctors usually recommend a gain of 20 to 25 pounds over your ideal normal weight during your nine months of pregnancy. If you are underweight to start, your doctor will want you to gain more; if you are too heavy, he'll recommend less.

As a general pattern, the four food groups will serve you best. And here's a brief outline for you to follow:

The four or more servings per day of fruits and vegetables that are recommended in the four food group plan are the same for a healthy, active woman, or a pregnant woman, or a nursing mother. But it's possible you would have slightly larger portions when pregnant or nursing.

Same For Other Groups

The same is true of four or more servings of breads and cereals per day. But the two or more daily servings of meat, fish or poultry, plus 3 to 5 eggs per week could be stepped up to an egg every day. Similarly, the two or more daily glasses of milk that are recommended for normal women should be increased to 3 or more glasses daily for pregnancy and 4 or more glasses daily while nursing.

As for other foods, such as fats, oils, sugar and other sweets, and foods such as pies, salted nuts, potato chips, these may be added for variety and flavor but if you gain too much weight these additional foods are the ones you should first cut down on, or cut out.

For more specific information you should see your own doctor.
