Grant Asked For Vaccine Program

Governor Rockefeller has announced the filing of an application with the Appalachian Regional Commission for a $59,156 grant to expand the anti-rubella vaccine program for children in the Southern Tier Counties.

"Goal of the immunization program," the Governor said, "is to combat any spread of their relatively mild but contagious children's disease. We hope to reach all children ages one through 12 in the New York Appalachian area, particularly the 5 - 9 age group, by June 30, 1971."

According to the health authorities, the rubella virus may seriously deform the fetus when contracted by women during early pregnancy. Since the vaccine is not recommended for large scale use in adults, they believe that it is imperative that the children be immunized to head off contagion. There are approximately 263,000 children in the one through 12 age group in the State's fourteen Appalachian counties. Some 110,000 of these are in the 5 - 9 age group.

Total cost of the project, which will be administered by the State Health Department, is $160,843. The amount will be made from the expected grant from the Commission plus $101,688 in State funds. Processing and approval of the application was made by the State Office of Planning Coordination, whose Director, D. David Brandon, is the Governor's representative to the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The program will be conducted at schools by the State Health Department through its Bureau of Epidemiology in cooperation with local physicians. The project was reviewed by the State Health Planning Commission.

All projects for Appalachian funding must be approved by the Governor or his representative to the Appalachian Regional Commission. The State Office of Planning Coordination administers the program in New York.
