Summarizing Today's

Youth Problem

"These" are indeed perilous times. Our young people are rebelling against established authority. They are indifferent to convention and no longer neat in appearance. They are openly disobedient to their parents. If these are to become our future leaders, there is indeed little hope for the world."

Directions: — Go back to the above paragraph and read it again. Then return here and continue on. That paragraph just about expresses everything that the adults today dislike about the American teen-ager and college student. It expresses their fears for the future of the world. It expresses their bewilderment when they realize that the world is changing and that these same kids who march in protest against that in which they find no justice will someday be met with the problems of true justice in its most crude and embellished forms. Yes, I think this paragraph summarizes everything about the generation gap and its immense problem in our nation.

Go back, read it again. Read it carefully and think about it for awhile. That paragraph was taken from a direct quotation made by Socrates, a man who lived between the years 469 and 399 B.C.

Feature

by Chris Bergerson

With only a couple of weeks away from graduation, we seniors are apt to feel a bit apprehensive of the coming years. We will soon be thrust out of our warm, safe, and secure cocoon of family and friends, into another world of strife, indecision, and misdirection.

Some of us are looking forward to getting out of high school, to be more on our own, to be independent. Others of us are rather sad at having to leave a place that we truly have gotten to respect and admire.

Many of us, however, are not so sure. We will suffer from the previous years of high school. We are curious about the new people we will meet, the students, professors, and administrators.

It will be interesting to find out how our expectations differ from the reality of college.

BASEBALL

On Tuesday, May 19, Andover won its first league game by downing visiting Bolivar, 4 to 3. Winning pitcher for Andover was Dan Grant, striking out six and walking just one. Losing pitcher was Shaner.

Andover had various singles in the game with John Fanton blasting a triple in the third inning. This was Andover's first league win.

Andover kept its playoff hopes alive by defeating a tough Cuba team at home by a score of 7 to 6. Andover jumped off to a 4 to 0 lead in the first inning. This lead was diminished in the fifth inning when Cuba tied the score at 5 all. After a scoreless 6th inning, Cuba went ahead in the top of the 7th on a bases loaded, passed ball situation. With Andover going into its half of the last inning Steve Tomm led off with a bunt and was safely on base — and then John Fanton tied the game by powering a double to right centerfield, bringing Tomm in.

Andover wasn't through yet. Tom Wallace was walked intentionally to set up a double play situation. This brought Shellman to bat. Shellman hit the first pitch of new pitcher Kamery for a single up the middle to bring home John for the win.

Gregg Shellman went all the way for Andover, striking out 8 and walking 2. Losing pitcher was Bob Clark, striking out 7.

Andover finished out of the playoffs, when Alfred Almond ended the season with a 7 - 5 record over all.

Can You Remember When?

by Kim Richardson

Can you remember when Rod first met Voni?

Can you remember that party in the barn, in Elm Valley?

Can you remember when Tom Wallace went to a fish hatchery?

Can you remember when Gregg Shellman visited Francis Conrad's farm over a week-end?

Can you remember when Dave Baker discovered a "bee tree" while walking in the woods?

Can you remember when Yvonne Mattison spent some time at the St. Lawrence Seaway?

Can you remember when Jeanne Atwell went bowling in Wellsville?

Can you remember when Eileen Atwell was 5 years old on Sept. 20. She treated her class to ice cream.

The combined sales of broilers and other chickens in the United States during 1969 totaled 11,107 million pounds compared with 10,429 million pounds a year earlier, a six per cent increase.
