The arrows pointing to a dead mother coon lying in the Quigg Hollow Stream is mute testimony of what oil pollution can do to mother nature's off-spring in a spring-fed stream. News Photo

Stream Pollution In Andover Area

The above picture was taken Wednesday along the banks of the stream in Quigg Hollow, a tributary of Dyke Creek, between the Ken Cook and Allan Harvey property, and shows the big gobs of crude oil floating on the surface of the pool.

A city motorist who stopped earlier in the week to admire the small stream noticed the animal in trouble and reported the incident to a rural resident, telling them that a small pig was all covered with oil in the stream. When the local resident investigated, he saw that it was a mother coon all covered with crude oil and that she was trying to clean it off her fur. Since the coon was still alive, he figured that she might be able to take care of it herself, and then too a mother coon's disposition might not be too friendly — so, he left the problem up to mother nature.

However, apparently crude oil isn't too healthy for animals, at least in big doses, as the coon died and we are wondering how many other wild animals have — or are — suffering the same fate.

This stream flows directly into Dyke Creek which the Andover Rod & Gun Club has been stocking with Trout for several years. And, according to local residents, this stream used to be a good Trout stream before the Trout Stocking Program was even instituted.

The crude oil appears to be seeping out of the ground just a short ways above the Quigg Hollow road bridge and may be coming from a fissure in the near-by oil fields. It has been reported to the Conservation Department, and local residents and Rod & Gun Club Officials are waiting for an official report.

Pollution!

A handy little pamphlet called "When Air Pollution is Heavy" — designed for those with a respiratory ailment or a heart condition — is available from the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association of Western New York, Box 63 Belmont 14813.

It lists these rules to follow: Remain indoors in a room with the windows closed to keep out some of the particles and polluted air. If the room temperature or humidity is uncomfortable, use an electric fan or an air conditioner that is set to recirculate the air within the room.

Don't smoke. Avoid rooms where others are smoking. Take it easy. Eliminate unnecessary physical exertion.

Observe precautions recommended by the health department or air pollution control agency.

Call the physician who is taking care of you if you have any questions or are having symptoms of cough or difficulty in breathing.

Andover Golden Age Club To Hold Tureen Dinner

A tureen dinner will be held Monday, August 31, at 7:30 p. m. at the Blessed Sacrament Social Hall. Mrs. Alice Barrett assisted by members whose last name begins in "B" and "E" will arrange the serving. Bring a tureen dish to pass and your own table service.

Those having birthday anniversaries in July and August will be honored at this meeting.

Anyone fifty years of age is invited to join the Club.

Lester Regan Named To Citizens Bank Board

T. Lester Regan, president of Cannon Clothing, Inc., North Main St., Wellsville has been elected to the board of directors of the Citizens National Bank and Trust Company.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Theodore McClure, bank president.

Mr. Regan resides with his wife, Loretta, and their four children, Patrick, Jo Anne, Barbara and Linda at 430 North Main St.

A graduate of Andover Central School, Mr. Regan attended the State University of New York Agricultural and Technical College at Rochester Institute of Technology.

He started his business career with the National Clothing Company of Rochester in 1946, and in 1954, he became associated with the Cannon Clothing Company of Wellsville.

Mr. Regan is a veteran of World War II having served as a Petty Officer in the U. S. Navy in both the Atlantic and Pacific Theaters of War.

He has been active in many community projects and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Wellsville Country Club and past member of the Board of Directors of the Wellsville Chamber of Commerce and United Fund.

President McClure stated that Mr. Regan's presence on the bank board would add representation from the Wellsville community of merchants and would complement the other business and professional skills of the men directing the affairs of the bank which operates in seven offices throughout the southern tier.

Church Census Results Tabulated

Tabulation of the church census cards for the Town of Andover was completed this week. The Senior Citizen Information Sheets have been turned over to the Senior Citizen office in Wellsville. Religious census cards have been distributed to the pastors of the individual churches.

Total families indicating membership in or preference for particular churches is as follows: Methodist — 132; Catholic — 98; Presbyterian — 79; Baptist — 43; Christian and Missionary Alliance — 12; Seventh Day Baptist — 10; Lutheran — 4; Episcopal — 4; Christian Temple — 2; Christian Science — 2; Mennonite — 1; No Preference (or never found at home) — 38.

Local ministers will meet as soon as vacations are over to make disposition of the 38 census cards indicating "no preference" or "not at home".

Sincere thanks is expressed to all who assisted in the census and to everyone for the cooperation in giving information to the census-takers.

Slim Pickins' Tops Club

Slim Pickins Tops Club held four meetings in the month of August. The Queens were:

Aug. 5 — Carolyn Emery
Aug. 12 — Carolyn Emery
Aug. 19 — Ruby Ormsby and Sue Granic

Aug. 26 — Lyla Stephens and Virginia Milligan

There was no queen for the month, however, Carolyn Emery was the best loser.

There will be an area Recognition Day in Olean on October 17. The best loser from July 1st to the end of September will be named Summer Queen. She will be recognized at this meeting.

KOPS and KIWS and our better losers will be included in some of the functions. It promises to be an interesting and encouraging day.

Anyone interested in joining TOPS is welcome to attend the meeting held every Wednesday evening at the school. Contact Jeanette Horan or any member.
