Project 42 is a long cabin student housing development being built by Log Erection Transport Co. on Allegany County Rt. 42, just beyond the Alfred Sand and Gravel Plant and will provide a much needed source of private housing for Alfred University and Alfred State College students.

Sunday was a big day for youngsters and parents at the picnic in the Island Park, Wellsville, given by the Worthington Turbine International for employees and families. Several from Andover were present.

The record 3400 students attending the State University Agricultural & Technical College at Alfred this fall, who will register Sept. 9 - 10 and begin classes Sept. 11 on the Alfred campus, face a tight squeeze in some of their dormitories because of a construction strike last spring. The strike delayed completion of one-half of a new 1000-bed dormitory and the result is that some students will have to live four in a room designed for two.

The shortage of rental housing in the Jamestown area has resulted in a critical situation at Jamestown Community College where 20 new faculty members and hundreds of students have asked the college for assistance in finding places to live.

Arthur Stout, administrator of the Jones Memorial Hospital Wellsville, has tendered his resignation, effective August 26. Mr. Stout assumed his duties in April of 1969. He guided the activities of the hospital through an extensive building and remodeling program. Mrs. Daniel Gridley of Wellsville has also resigned from the board of managers. No replacement has been made to date. Joseph Waitkus, chairman of the Board of Managers, said the hospital board will act as administrator until a new man can be found.

A Town of Amherst student pilot apparently escaped without injury Tuesday evening when his single-engine plane crashed right side-up in the Genesee River after two missed landing attempts. State Police said that Mr. Malakie, who was alone, was on a routine training flight from Jamestown Municipal Airport when he twice overshot the main north-south runway of Wellsville Municipal Airport. The two-seat Cessna 150 dropped into four feet of water 100 feet north of the runway.
