"I Am Only One"

Too many times today if we are asked to do a favor for or help a friend, we refuse. We refuse not because we are unable or incapable of doing the favor, but because we cannot see any personal gain in the act. Many do not realize how selfish they are. Their excuses sound reasonable even to their own ears. Others say to themselves, "Why bother? I am only one person. I can't do everything." And still others feel that it is not their responsibility and continue on their free, happy ride through life. But is this ride happy?

I feel that the giving of yourself to others and making other people happy are two of the most important things we can do. These things are very easy to talk about, but making them part of our everyday lives can be very difficult. It is not easy to tell someone a thought or show someone something you have produced, knowing that they can crush you with a word. It is very difficult to trust people with something very important to you. But still if you trust someone enough to give part of yourself to them, it can make them very happy. The two concepts of giving and happiness are interrelated.

And so, the next time someone asks you for help, give them that help and see how happy you make them. Perhaps Edward Everett Hale summed it all up when he wrote:

I am only one,
But still I am one
I cannot do everything,
But still I can do something;
And because I cannot do everything
I will not refuse to do the something I can do.

by Tom Wallace

This summer Andy Gram was chosen to attend Boys' State which was held at Morrisville State College from June 21 through the 27. He was sponsored by the American Legion.

One of the many activities Andy enjoyed was the operation of the State government. He actually participated in all the government functions just as if it were the real thing. Andy reports that he found this to be a very educational experience.
