Green Thumb Notes

HOME GARDENERS ADVISED TO GIVE ROOM TO PLANTS PROPER SPACING CRUCIAL

Ithaca, N. Y — one of the most serious troubles n the home vegetable garden is that the plants are frequently too crowded.

Every gardener seems to sow a lot more seed than is really needed, observes a Cornell University specialist.

Prof. Raymond Sheldrake Jr., in the Department of Vegetable Crops at the N. Y. State College of Agriculture and Life Science, Cornell stresses that garden plants should have plenty of room to grow.

"After the seedlings are up everyone hates to pull them out and throw them away, but actually too many seedlings in the row can act just like weeds," he point out.

The problem of overcrowding often occurs when head lettuce, leaf lettuce, sweet corn, carrots, beets, radishes, and spinach are sown.

Of course, the transplanted crops need room too, but usually gardeners buy these plants and try to space them more correctly.

To grow round table beets, seedlings should be thinned so each plant is two to three inches apart. Rows should be from 12 to 18 inches apart.

Carrots can be a little closer, but they still need one to three inches of space if long straight carrots are to develop. If carrot seedlings are crowded, they become twisted, tiny carrots with poor quality.

Lettuce varieties often get crowded. To get good heads of iceberg lettuce or leaf lettuce, each plant must be at least 10 to 12 inches apart.

"I've seen people leave five plants instead of thinning down to one and all they get is two poor heads."

Leaf lettuce is planted quite thick and amateur gardeners are reluctant to thin it because the idea is that they will eat the leaves anyway. This is not true, he pointed out.

Good quality leaf lettuce should be thinned to about 8 to 10 inches apart; cut the whole plant off and the best part of it is the center tender light green material. If not thinned, he result is a bunch of little, bitter outside leaves.

"Go out in your garden and take a look. Thin some of the overcrowded crops so they have room to grow," Sheldrake urges.

Holland - Perry Speedway News

Holland New York — The United Speedway Association (USA) ovals of Holland International and Perry Motor Speedways have waded off to their wettest season start in their fourteen years of continous racing operation. Both asphalt plants have had their NASCAR Stock Car programs either washed out by torrential down pours or forced to postpone their events because of wet grounds on eight occasions from the ten starting attempts in 1973.

Excluding one practice and time trial session, Holland International has been able to hold only one regular night of events Saturday, May 19th. On five other attempts, track management felt it was necessary to cancel the events that were scheduled for those dates for one wet reason or another.

A portion of those five events race fans were forced to miss included the very beautiful Annual Holland Tulip Festival, the Boy Scouts missed their evening, a Family Night was also lost plus the prestigious 2nd Annual Liberty 100 was forced to be postponed to Wednesday, June 6th.

At Perry Motor Speedway, although the practice sessions were postponed, the initial event of the 1973 racing season was completed. However, on the following three consecutive scheduled Sunday events, Kenmore, New York's Allen Levine's motorcycle jump is still to be run, along with the Late Model Sportsman "Gold Cup 50" plus the season opening ribbon cutting events and a fireworks display.

All this adversity has yet to discourage the USA Management as their 1973 racing plans continue irregardless of the unusually wet start of the 1973 racing season.

On tap for this coming Saturday night, June 9th at Holland International, will be the always popular "Decal Night" directed of course toward the "young" race driving aspirants. This night is always a very successful event for the under 12 race driving enthusiasts, as such child receives a bevy of decals to decorate wherever (usually his home) he chooses.

At Perry Motor Speedway, a regular evening of fantastic NASCAR Stock Car racing featuring the increasingly popular Late Model Sportsman divisions, plus the exciting Limited Sportsman and Charger classes is scheduled for this week-end.

The avid USA race fans who frequent both asphalt ovals are as disappointed as the management, not being able to participate in all the promotion and contests available to them this year because of the consistant rainouts. Most popular is the Mystery Mileage Car Contest sponsored this month by M & H Auto Parts, located in Attica and Orchard Park, New York. The Contest includes 20 prize winners each week, a $100 winner each month, plus the opportunity to win a beautiful Dodge Convertible at seasons close in September.

Gates for fans and contestants alike open 6 P. M. at Holland International Speedway, live broadcasts from track side begin a half hour later and go till qualifying starting time at 8 P. M. Only 35 minutes from downtown Buffalo via the New York State Thruway and Aurora (400) Expressway. Holland International is on Rt. 16 one mile from the center of Holland, New York.

Gates are open at Perry Motor Speedway at 5 P. M. live broadcasts from the action oval begin at 6 P. M., action slated for the ¼ mile oval to begin at 7 P. M. Perry Motor Speedway is located on Adrian Road off Rt. 20A South of Rochester via the 490 Expressway and Rt. 19.
