CONSTITUTION WEEK
SEPTEMBER 17 - 23

The Constitution - Is It Relevant Today?

by Teresa Polmateer

Many changes have occurred in the world since our forefathers wrote the Constitution and adopted it as the "bible" of the United States Government.

James Madison, known as the "Father of the Constitution", wrote the historical paper with other men of Congress as a foundation for the future of the thirteen original states.

Is the Constitution relevant today? Yes, I really believe it is relevant and always will be with certain amendments to reflect the society.

Senior Interview

We have a new group of seniors this year and to begin our interviews, we have Cynthia Lynn Barden. "Cindy" is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Barden and has one brother, Gary, and one sister, Beth.

Cindy is majoring in office practice and has been very active throughout school. She served as Vice-President of her class in her eighth, ninth and eleventh grades.

Cindy's plans for the future include working, and I'm sure I speak for the rest of the students at ACS when I say, "Best of Luck Always, Cindy."

Vice-President - Tony Dougherty

The Library Council will sponsor a "Labels For Education" project. Between now and December 8, we hope to collect enough Campbell Soup labels to earn a cassette player.

Students are saving their labels and they would appreciate it if friends of the school would do the same. Any Campbells' Soup can label counts in the drive.

New Teacher

by Cindy Tomm

The sixth grade class is fortunate to have Mrs. Pamela Morris for their teacher. Mrs. Morris came from San Diego, California.

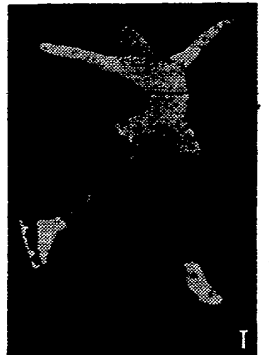

She has had many varied experiences prior to her teaching in Andover. She has served as a vista volunteer in Atlanta, Georgia; juvenile delinquents in California and a teacher in a nursery school in Saratoga Springs, New York.

Mrs. Morris moved to Andover in January. Her husband is completing his education for his Master's degree in Alfred, while Mrs. Morris is trying her first year of sixth grade teaching.

Donors "Get It All Together" for 4-H

4H DONORS GET IT ALL TOGETHER

SPECIAL-"4H Gets It All Together". That's the theme of this year's National 4-H Week, October 7-13. And 5 1/2 million 4-H boys and girls, a half million volunteer adult leaders, plus countless others who support the 4-H program nationwide will be getting together to call attention to 4-H program successes.

Helping them observe National 4-H Week are some 60 businesses, corporations and foundations that support the 4-H program through the National 4-H Service Committee.

In 1973, the Committee in its 52nd year, has committed over $3 million dollars to aid the 4-H program, nationwide. These funds go into incentives and recognition, educational aids and literature, scholarships, leader training and other services.

These corporate friends of 4-H provide over 270 scholarships valued at $186,300. Many of these grants are awarded during the 1973 National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 25-29. Over 1,600 teens are scheduled to participate in five days of seminars, tours, events and entertainment all geared around the "4-H Gets It All Together" theme.

And 4-H is getting it all together in many different ways. Boys and girls of different racial, economic and social backgrounds participate in 4-H programs and activities. Exchanges between 4-H'ers of different states and different lifestyles are common activities in every state 4-H program.

Boys are participating in once traditional girls 4-H activities and vice versa, with the encouragement of the Co-operative Extension Service.

Boys are becoming more interested in fashion and they find an outlet for their curiosity in programs such as 4-H Dress Revue, sponsored by Simplicity Pattern Co., Inc. Boys as well as girls are gaining sewing skills in 4-H clothing, sponsored by Coats & Clark, Inc., and they learn how to efficiently use their time, money and resources in 4-H home management, a program aided by Tupperware Home Parties.

In traditionally male oriented programs, such as automotive, sponsored by The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, girls have become very active participants.

And 4-H donors encourage young people to develop and use their talents and skills in helping others in their communities. These qualities are best brought out in 4-H'ers through 4-H health programs, sponsored by Eli Lilly and Company; public speaking, aided by Union Oil Company of California; safety, supported by General Motors; and the 4-H leadership program, newly supported by Reader's Digest.

While 4-H support by American business dates back to the early 1900's honors for longest continuous support through the National 4-H Service Committee, goes to Armour and Company. Donor anniversaries in 1973 include Eastman Kodak Company, 10 years; The Good-year Tire and Rubber Company, 5 years; and a new 4-H donor, Ski-Doo, Division of Bombardier Limited.

In addition, The Santa Fe Railway Company and Gulf Central Pipeline Company; The Milwaukee Road; Chicago & North Western Transportation Company; Burlington Northern, Inc.; DeKalb AgResearch, Inc.; The Conrad Hilton Hotel; Cities Service Company; Edwin T. Meredith Foundation; and Top Form Products Dept., Merck & Co., Inc. all aid 4-H programs through the National Committee.

Together these 4-H donors, along with 4-H'ers and their leaders, have helped to make the outstanding youth organization it is today. And together, this viable partnership will continue to encourage and inspire youths to follow the 4-H ideals of "learning by doing" and "to make the best better"
