

Dr. Lyndon Goodridge

Dr. Lyndon E. Goodridge has been named assistant to the vice president for student and community affairs at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Dr. Goodridge will oversee UAB student service units responsible for institutional programs for a student body of some 9,500, according to an announcement by Dr. John Dunbar, vice president for student and community affairs.

"The background Dr. Goodridge brings to his student affairs post is excellent," Dr. Dunbar said. "I am delighted UAB will have the benefit of his leadership at this critical stage in the development of student administrative services."

In addition, Dr. Goodridge will coordinate the services of these offices and associated statistical information with other UAB academic and administrative units.

"Completion of a student information system under development will assist in coordination of these activities," Dr. Dunbar said.

A native of Andover, N. Y., Dr. Goodridge joined UAB in 1972 as assistant professor of dentistry after serving on the graduate faculty at Rochester Institute of Technology, Rochester, N. Y. He now holds an academic appointment as associate professor in the University College School of Business.

Dr. Goodridge received his B.S. and M. S. degrees from the University of Georgia and Ph. D. from Purdue University.
