Panther Prowl

TRACK

Last Wednesday Andover traveled to Friendship for their first Meet of the year. We were defeated by Friendship 76 - 59 and we defeated Angelica 84 - 41.

Jim Jackson won the 440 yard Dash with a time of 62 seconds. Chad Grossman won the Pole Vault with a vault of 9' 6". The Long Jump was a clean sweep as Bill Cornell led the way in a one-two-three finish by Andover in that event: Dennis Ordiway won the 100 yard Dash. The Mile and Two Mile Relay were also taken by Andover. Rick Cahill took a second in the 220 yard Dash being beaten by only 2 tenths of a second.

On Saturday Andover competed in the Alfred-Almond Invitational. There were seventeen schools competing. Andover's Senior Chad Grossman took a third in the Pole Vault as he again cleared 9' 6". Good work Chad and all the rest of the team.

There are several Meets left and the best is yet to come.

BASEBALL

Last Tuesday Scio came to the Andover Stadium for our second game of the year. We were defeated by a score of 12 to 5. Scio first seemed to take off as they pounded out several early inning runs and just kept on going. Andover fought back as they ripped off 5 runs themselves, but Scio just seemed to have the hitting power that day.

On Tuesday Andover traveled to Belmont and in an eight-inning thriller Belmont downed the Panthers 7 to 6. Dana Presutti was the winning pitcher for Belmont and Andover's Burger was charged with the loss. Andover played Alfred-Almond on Tuesday the 7th of May and we are sure to do better there. The results will be posted next week.

Good luck boys and I'm sure you will do better in the remaining games.

National Honor Society Convention

On Thursday, May 2, Mr. Russell, Sara Pantan and Debbie Baker traveled to Alfred University for a meeting with members of the National Honor Society from the surrounding area schools.

The main purpose of the meeting was to pick up ideas of how the NHS in other schools is run. It was found that many schools have an active society. That is, one in which the members use their skills to benefit the school. Tutoring is a main project carried on by the majority of chapters.

A speech by Dr. Gaut Vice-President of the NHS in Washington D. C., showed ways in which a relatively inactive society can be turned into an active one.

Tips on money making projects for scholarships and other expenses were discussed when the students broke into small group sessions, controversial subjects such as drinking, watergate, Class-A passes and privileges given to NHS members and seniors were also discussed.

It was an enjoyable and informative day. Thanks to Mr. Russell for sending two representatives.

Judy Bliss Receives Two Music Awards

This Friday, another special assembly will be presented by the Otto-Eldred Senior High Choir for the ACS student body.

FHA News

by Sara Pantan

From May 1 through May 3, eight girls, accompanied by Miss Goodrich, attended the Annual State FHA Convention at Grossingers, New York. They were: Cindy Tomm, Cherie Haskins, Melody Weber, Sue Emery, Lori Stein, Nancy Stephens, Pam Grossman and Debbie Allen.

The theme of this year's meeting was "Unto The Dawning of a New Day". The girls were entertained Wednesday and Thursday night. They saw magician acts, listened to a rock band and singer Johnny King performed for them.

Cindy Tomm, a junior, was installed as State Projects Chairman for the year 74-75, and Sara Pantan, also a junior, was appointed National Committee Member for 74-75. In the opening session the officers introduced themselves and their advisors along with new office holders. The speaker for the session was Ms. Grace Richardson, Com. Editor. The second general meeting was a business meeting and there was also an impact meeting of all delegates and advisors.

They say the food was great and they all had a marvelous time.

LIVING UNDER LAW

RIGHT TO ADVERTISE

Do you have a right to advertise whatever you please in your local newspaper, so long as you are willing to pay for the space?

No. As a matter of fact, ads worth millions of dollars are rejected annually by the nation's press, usually on grounds of bad taste or dishonesty.

To the advertiser who is turned down, this may seem to be unlawful exercise of power on the part of the newspaper. One merchant, whose ads were found unacceptable, raised that issue in a court test.

"A newspaper," he argued, "performs a public service. It has a duty to make its advertising space available to one and all."

But his complaint was denied. The court said that, since a newspaper is not a public utility, it has the same privilege as any other private business to turn down a customer.

That doesn't mean there are no limits at all on a newspaper's right to reject advertising. Suppose, for instance, that the rejection is part of a scheme to choke off competition and set up an unlawful monopoly. In such circumstances, the United States Supreme Court has ruled, the newspaper is violating the anti-trust laws.

What about the news and editorial columns? Could a person insist on being mentioned in those sections? Again, the newspaper has broad discretion as to what it will publish.

In one case, a reader went to court to complain that his letter-to-the-editor had never been printed. He based his complaint on the fact that the newspaper had invited its readers to write in.

However, the court said the newspaper's invitation for letters did not amount to a promise that it would print them all.

In another case, a political candidate sought damages from a newspaper because it failed to mention his name in a story about the election. But the court ruled that it was the job of the editor, not of the candidate, to decide what was newsworthy. The court said: "(The newspaper) must be the judge of the news it prints."

BANKING IS EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

A Guaranteed Student Loan—Your Low-Cost Education Fund

If a member of your family will be college-bound next year, chances are you're already beginning to assess the strain to come on the household budget—and it's not too soon.

With average costs for tuition, room and board at private four-year colleges now up to about $3,281 a year, more families than ever before will be looking for outside financial assistance. Your first goal should be a fellowship or grant; but if your student doesn't qualify, a second choice that's still first-rate would be a low-cost government guaranteed student loan.

There are two big advantages to these loans, the American Bankers Association (ABA) points out: the 7 per cent interest rate can't be beat, and the first instalment doesn't normally need to be paid until nine months after graduation.

It should be clearly understood by the student, however, that he or she, not the parent, is legally obligated for the loan and that unlike grants and fellowships, the money received is not a gift.

To apply for a student loan, first visit the school's financial aid-officer. He will determine how much need there is and recommend that amount for the loan. The maximum allowed anyone is $2,500 a year, with a total limit of $7,500 for undergraduate work and $10,000 over the student's entire educational career.

The financial aid-officer will also explain whether or not you qualify for a "government interest subsidy." If so, the government will pay the interest for the period the student is in school; if not, the student must pay it. These payments begin 30 days after receipt of the loan.

The requirements for an interest subsidy are an adjusted family income of less than $15,000 a year and establishment of need through a qualifying test. Pending legislation in Congress would greatly liberalize this process, eliminating the needs test for applicants whose adjusted family income is below $15,000.

Once the school has processed the papers, the student takes the application to a participating lending institution. The most logical choice would be the bank where you regularly do business. ABA figures show that the nation's banks, which hold less than 60 per cent of deposits in all depository institutions, have made more than 80 per cent of all loans under the program since it began in November 1965.

But, don't wait to start the process. It does involve paperwork, and that always takes time.
