Editorial

As a senior and with the last day of school approaching at a rapid pace, I have a mixture of thoughts in my head. Some are happy. Some are sad. It seems you are on an island by yourself. Then it hits you that your classmates are experiencing the same anxiety and doubts. I discovered this while asking some seniors what they were thinking about during these last few weeks of school.
'Not much different from the last year at school. Because it has all been very boring.'
'Ah!'
'I'm counting it down and can't wait to get out of here.'
'I really want to get out, but I think I'll miss it.'
'Missing it.'
'Getting out.'
'Going out and really learning something'
'Marriage and fun for a change'
'I keep thinking of all the things I haven't done and hoping that time will slow down. I'm ready to move on though, but I can wait.'
These are a conglomeration of thoughts. As graduates some of you have probably experienced them. As underclassmen some of you will experience them.
