Grocery Gems & Goodies

by Phil Fitch

Well, folks, the good news for this week is the fact that beef prices are still down which make them the best buy and, it appears as if they will remain steady for several weeks.

In the produce line the cabbage crop is reported as the best quality in many years with storage beginning this week and supplies being predicted to be available until next spring. Fresh tube tomatoes remain at the same level and most other fresh vegetables are stable. Virtually all potatoes will be in storage by the end of the week across the country so the price on this item should be stabilized for quite some time.

In the fruit line, Florida grapefruit remains the best buy although the price of apples should ease slightly as soon as the area crop is harvested and in storage. This lower price is encouraging as the USDA has revised its apple production estimate upwards as the crop is harvested.
