The third grade students of Greenwood Central School were given the fun of having grandmothers share a day of their school lives on Wednesday, December 11.

Mrs. Clair (June) Rollins, teacher, planned a "Grandmothers Day" and the children went home excitedly with invitations for their grandmothers to attend a day at school with them.

Mrs. Rollins stated, "I didn't realize how much this meant to them until one of the children said his grandmother was coming to stay overnight." This grand mother travelled 45 miles to spend the day in 3rd grade with her grandson.

There were a total of 28 in all who came to share the day. Some for all day and some for a few hours.

The day started with the regular reading groups. Mimeographed sheets of the lessons were given grandmothers and they did the assignments, with the children. Mary visited the media center for extra reading.

The second class was art with Mrs. Pubs. Here everyone was given a choice of materials and both grandmother and students created something of their own. Some made egg carton Christmas trees, others sketched while others made antas with cotton.

It was time for lunch. Grandmothers stood in line with the children and were served a delicious turkey and gravy dinner in the cafeteria.

After lunch was math class. One grandmother whispered, "I really didn't look forward to doing the assignments with the children." It turned out to be fun. Some of the grandmothers laughed at the mistakes they made. Of course this tickled the children too!

A special event once a week is swimming class. The chairs were lined up beside the pool for a good view of the swimmers. The children were proud to show what they had learned.

Following this was a short story time, then everyone tried their hand at art in making booklet covers of green construction paper with three-kings and their bright colored crowns.

The Electric Hour on TV was next and following this the class did a social studies paper to gether.

To conclude the day, the children gave a special program for the grandmothers. This included singing, recital and dances. The children were really looking forward to Grandmothers part in this program. All grandmothers were to play rhythm instruments while the children sang "This Land Is Your Land". Other songs the children sang were: "Tie A Yellow Ribbon", "Sweet Gypsy Rose", "Davy Crockett", "I Didn't Know The Gun Was Loaded" and "Tom Dooley". Children taking part in the recital were: Joe Schmitt, Cinc Butter, Kelly Moore, Bobbi Sue Beanie, Lisa Tracy Vincent, M. Harkenrider, Camille Atherton and Amy Lounsberry.
