Stained Glass Course To Start This Summer

A most unusual vocation or craft hobby will be taught in Friendship this summer, as Lumin-Essence Studio offers a ten-week, 20-hour course in stained glass technics.

Jeffrey Speeth, formerly of Los Angeles, Calif., and Dany Head, formerly of Oakland, Calif., have designed the course for novices and amateurs who have had some prior experience. Both types of students will learn authentic traditional methods of designing, executing and repairing stained glass windows and shades, or other decorative items.

Mr. Speeth says that the course is a response to the growing interest in stained glass, with more and more people wanting to own Tiffany-style or more modern lampshades, and to have stained glass in their homes and businesses. Many such people would like to be able to create their own pieces, or repair antique ones, but lack the necessary tools, skills and materials.

"We can provide the basic materials. Stained glass craft is not hard to learn, and it can be a challenging, fascinating and profitable hobby," Mr. Speeth says. He and Mr. Head are the area's only full-time stained glass professionals.
