In case you hadn't noticed there is now a Community Center in Andover. There is also a Bake Shop and a Sub Shop. Before you know it you'll see fat little kids running down the street with jelly and powdered sugar on their faces and lettuce in their fingernalisheaded straight for the pool table. If you stick around Main Street for awhile you're bound to see the occasional chubby adult rolling down the sidewalk bellowing in one direction. "I want a dozen strawberry filled" and in the other direction, "two whole turkey subs—hold the onions".

Jus' think, a year ago if you were hungry you either went to the Market Basket or home. If you were bored you had to chase cars or throw rocks. So, to prevent malnutrition and broken windows there are now places to eat and things to do. Andover's growing, you guys! ing, you guys!

Editorial

by Kal Shaw I think that we as students are very fortunate to go to a small public school, such as Andover. I know that some of the students

I know that some of the students say hat this is a poorly run school, but in fact it is the least vandalized school in the county. The discipline here is a little strict, but the principal and other members of the faculty have a grave burden on their shoulders trying to keep this school in shape.

In a smalll school, such as Andover Central, we get more personal attention, not only with our homework, but with personal problems If you have a problem that you would like to talk about, the teachers will make the time to sit down and discuss it. This discussion will be kept confidential by most teachers teachers

We, as students, make it possible for other new students to feel comfortabe. I can't think of one student who has come to Andover and been rejected. As a student here at ACS I can take pride in saying I went to Andover because this is a well organized school system.

Track

by Terry McCormick

by Terry McCormick

This year's Track Team was very successful. With a team of nine runners. Andover placed fifth in the County. This year's team held the spirit of Track alive for one moreyear. When you are on a very small team like this, all of the team members are drawn very close together, which makes every one push just that much harder.

This year's team was made up largely of seniors completing their fourth year of Track. Rick Cahill, in his fourth year, placed fourth in the County in the 400, second in Section 5 in the same event. Also fourth year was John Davis. Who was fourth in the County and came up to take second in the Sectionals. Russ Godown another four year member. was first in the Long Jump in the County and fifth in the Sectionals Brian Halsey, the last four year man, was second in the County fifth in the Sectionals. The County Champion 2-Mile Relay Team came in third in the Sectionals. The team: Bob Wallace, Russ Godown John Davis and Davo Burns. This was the best Track season ever in Andover, and unless more people get out for Track it could be the last.

Memorial Day Comments

by Debbie Buckwalter

by Debble Buckwalter

My position as co-valedictorian this year in Andover has brought me through more than one unique exerience already. The most interesting and educational, however, happened last Wednesday at the Annual Memorial Day Assembly. Tradition here, at Andover School calls for the girl holding the highest academic standing to recite John McCrae's "In Flander's Fields' and the boy with the highest academic record to recite Abraham Lincoln's "Gestysburg Address". My first reaction when I read through "Flander's Field" was to downright refuse the "honor" because it speaks of values very opposite those that I uphold. But it is not very, easy to "buck" tradition. Actually, I did not try very hard as I had waited until the very last minute to think of doing, or not doing, anything. Consequently, my next thought was to go ahead, recite the poem, and finish with a few comments of my own in regard to the poem and finish with a few comments of my own in regard to the poem itself and Memorial Day (what it started out to be, what it is now, and what it ideally represents.) Well, I "chickened out." So now my aim is to make up for my lack of confidence in the assembly — and try to write down my feelings.

Sitting there on stage and watching the faculty and my fellow stu-

to write down my feelings.
Sitting there on stage and watching the faculty and my, fellow students file in and take their seats naturally left me a little shaky. When the band began to play, a quite unexpected awe came over me. I don't know that I can explain it, but I suddenly felt kind faculting shapeled in the stage of the st plain it, but I suddenly for kind of exciting inspiration that many of the deceased men we were honoring must have felt when going off to war; a glorious affair to them with many tears, bands playing and crowds of waving hands.

off to war; a giornous areas with many tears, bands playing and crowds of waving hands.

I went over and over my recitation in my mind as I waited for my turn at the stand, and as I did so, some of the poet's intended intending began to come to my understanding. When the opening lines say "In Flander's Fields the roppies blow between the crosses row on row —", it trully means row on row on ROW!! If you have over seen pictures of Flander's Field Memorial Cemetery in Flander's Field Memorial Cemetery in Flander's Field Memorial Cemetery in Flander's Belgium, you almost want to cry!! There were hundreds and thousands of American men from age 12 to 112 buried in such fields all over the world — and the question is — Why did they die? Memorial Day speeches always, say "thousands of our meneave up their lives for their country without passing thoughts for themselves." —Most of them probelly did not do that at all. It is natural for a human being to fend for himself to the very end. I am not so sure that there were so many men who did die as they said but there were more than we can ever know who dove over a live grenade or didn't run away when they had the chance, but staved in danger to save a few nearby friends whom they probably hadn't known for more than a few months. But, ves — isn't that what dying for your country actually is??

Another line from "Fiander's Fields" says. "We gre the dead — for your country actually is??

Another line from "Fiander's Fields" says. "We are the dead—take up our quarrel with the foe—" When I first read that, my anti-war sentiments arose like a flash within. Does that mean that since there are thousands who have died—we should keep on sending our most capable citizens, our young men—off to die also—so that those first thousand deaths would not have been in vain? After the Americans started to rise inp against the Vietnamese War many rallies were held thrught the country where mothers of War many rallies were held thruout the country where mothers of the MIA's and POW's shood up and begged others to keep going over into the action so that their sons deaths would not have been worthless "What kind of country are wer" they would ask, "that we pull out of a war before winning and in doing so dishonor all of those men's deaths?" I say what kind of mather?" I say what kind of mather?" I say what kind of mather man or beast when a mother has to revenge the death of her son with the death of another?

Abraham Lincoln phrased this "take up our quarrel —" plea much more understandably when he said "It is for us the living rather to be dedicated to the unfinished work which they who fought here thus far so nobly advanced — to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their full measure of devotion — that we here highly resolve that these men shall not have died in vain — that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom — and that government of the people, by the people and for the people, ball not perish from the earth."

It seems that with all of our impressions and in the people and the dearth."

from the earth."

It seems that with all of our impressive technology and "civilization", we are still quite lacking if we cannot find a more effective and humane way of settling our disputes than by the useless slaughter of thousands upon thousands of our own and other people. Do the following lines from Wilfred Owen's "Duice et Decorum Est" sound so very glorious?

"If in some smothering dreams, vou too could pace Behind the wagon that we flung him in, And watch the white eyes wilt-And watch the white eyes wilting in his face.

His hanging face, like a devil's sick of sin,
If you could hear, at every jolt,
the blood
Come garyling from the frothcorrupted lungs
Bitten as the cud
Of vie incurable sores on innocent tongues.
My friend you would not tell with such high zest
To children ardent for some desperate glory.
That ald lie: DULCE ET DECORUM EST
PRO PATRIA MORI."

Ed Note: Did the writer study American History? If so — How many wars did the United States start? Wern't we embroiled because some other Country interfered with the rights of American Citizens guaranteed them under the Constitution to: "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness"? Did you ever try to argue or debate with some one who "turns a deaf ear"? How can you settle a dispute if the other party won't listen?

Teddy Roosevelt is quoted as having made this classis comment:

"Speak Softly — But Carry A Big Stick".
This is the only language that a Despot, Tyrans, or Dictator understands!

practice and secretarial education BOCES.

Melody is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Weber, now living in Wellsville, New York. She has two older brothers, Tom who graduated from Wellsville and Ralph who graduated here at Andover Central School.

In her stay at ACS, Melody has avidly lent herself to the duties of treasurer for the Girls Athletic Association. And the freshmar class, as well as secretary for the eleventh and Twelvth grade. She has also participated in Future Homemakers Association and Choir. Her singing abilities allowed her to be in All-County Chorus When asked what she plans to do in the future. Meloday replied: "work and eventually becoming a housewife". She explains that those are very exciting goals. The Hi-Herald Staff tends to agree with her. because we know that Melody Weber is a very exciting girl. And if her life still doesn't seem full enough von may see her gallophag across a field on horseback which is her favorite hobby. Melody is definitely an amazing girl.
