Feature

by Cathy McCormick
Another year has begun. After those poor lockers got rested up and ready to stand on their own two feet another root comes and knocks them down. The beatings and hardships start all over again.

Different tenents mean different boks, maybe even more than last year more stuffed in every which way. To add to the misery there are gym clothes, lunch sacks, books, coats, and much more. Poor lockers, they are over-loaded, beat up and that new shiney lock broken.

Day in, day out the same books are taken out and thrown back in. That same ugly black shoe is kicking them open and slamming them shut. They don't understand why.

Is school for people to beat up things? What are the lockers here for?

Animal Poems by William Austin, Grade 3:

Cats and Rats

Cats chase rats.
Rats are scared of cats.
That's good cause our cats
Keep away our rats.

Dogs

Dogs are neat.
They wipe their feet.
I like dogs because
They like me.

Cows

Cows are big and fat.
They are much bigger than a cat.
They are much smaller than a dinosaur.
But a cow is much nicer than any old dinosaur.
