I used to think that the liberated woman was a woman who had a family, found time for PTA and ERA meetings, and had a job. I know differently now. Women today need not be as active as the ideal liberated woman is pictured. A truly liberated woman can be found in almost every home. This woman is the housewife. Yes, you read me right, the housewife. If you stop and think for a moment it becomes quite clear. The whole innovation behind the Woman's Lib movement was to stop the stereo-typing of woman and to allow them the freedom to do what they want. If a woman wants to stay home and scrub floors and take care of her husband and children all day, then more power to her! She is just exercising her right to do as she wants. Think twice before you start exhorting a housewife who you feel should stand up for what she wants to do. She probably is doing just that!

The New Year is again upon us and it is time to make another New Year's Resolution. Many people make New Year's resolutions, but how many of these "I'm going to work hard" and "I'm going to lose weight!" are two common examples of resolutions. How long does it take, though, before the hardworkers find themselves putting things off and falling behind in their work or the weight watchers begin indulging in fatty foods again. With just a bit more perseverance for the worker and a bit more self control for the dieter 1977 could be a very successful year. Make your resolution difficult, but not impossible, and see how strong a person you are. It takes real determination to keep these promises to yourself, but the end reward should be well worth the occasional hardships!
