"Inside The State Capital"

By James L. Emery

Hearing how other state legislatures across the nation address themselves to problems and implement their laws can prove to be a most beneficial experience. I had such an opportunity this past week when I attended the National Conference of State Legislators held in Detroit.

The subject of welfare is always a big topic at any meeting of legislators, and the National Conference is certainly no exception. The problem of cutting back welfare fraud was of primary interest a few years ago and thus I mentioned by sponsorship of a New York Law to create an Office of Welfare Inspector General.

At this year's meeting, welfare is still of primary concern and the New York Republicans' concept of a welfare limitation act is receiving enthusiastic support. This act would set New York's welfare payments at a level nearly equal to that of other similar sized states.

Another issue which is being emphasized this year is energy. There are the beginning sprouts of a united effort on the part of the states to fight against the Carter Administration's proposed energy taxes and to encourage the development of alternative sources of energy and energy conservation measures.

Finally, I would like to note that even New York State's high level of taxation have been discussed at the National Conference by legislators from other states. Those leaders from other states have learned not to follow New York's taxing lead and they are drooling over the fact that New York's high taxes are driving businesses to their states.

Miss Helen Folsing entertained the Entre Nous Club at her home Tuesday evening.

The Kings Daughters of Presbyterian Church will hold a bake sale at B. C. Williams Store, Saturday. Mrs. Charles Church reports having seen a Robin last Saturday in the yard at her home on Rochambeau Ave.

The Misses Mary O'Boyle, Ada Mitchell and Helena Higgins attended the Teachers' Conference called by Supt. W. G. Pope, at Wellsville last Friday.
